The beaver (genus Castor) is a large, primarily nocturnal, semiaquatic rodent. The North American beaver (Castor canadensis) (native to North America) and Eurasian beaver (Castor fiber) are the only two species of beaver left in the world. They are the second-largest rodent in the world. Beavers are known for building dams, canals, and lodges (homes). They are the second-largest rodent in the world. They live in deep water to protect against predators, and to float food and building materials.
